CARDS AND YANKS ON WAY TO ST. LOUIS

WORLD SERIES RIVALS RIDE RAILS ON JUMP TO MOUND CITY

McKechnie Will Pin Hopes Tomorrow on Haines.

ZACHARY IS FOE

Inferiority of Heydler Team Factor, Says Corum.

By Bill Corum.
EN ROUTE TO ST. LOUIS, Oct. 6.—The world's series ball clubs are riding the rails today. This is no novelty for the Cardinals, who have been riding a rail since Thursday.

UNCLE SAM GETS SHARE OF "GATE"

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—If the World series goes seven games it will add about $139,000 to Uncle Sam's money chest, and judging from the attendance at the first two games will establish a new record for admission taxes from baseball classics.

Out of the first two days' receipts the government got approximately $45,000, as ten per cent of the paid "gate," it was stated at the treasury today. Officials conservatively estimated the tax collection on games played at St. Louis at $15,000 daily.

See Chance for Sunday Game. Some even go so far as to say it is a third rail and that the chances of the Red Wings are consequently dead so far as the world's championship is concerned. But there still is reasonable room for doubt, as the lawyers say.

It was bad judgment to pitch Alexander after the Yanks captured the first game and worse judgment to leave him in there two innings.

Sentiment is one thing. A world's series is something else.

But the National league team, which has gone through six straight games without scoring a victory over its younger rival, seems due for a break tomorrow. It will be Haines against Tom Zachary and if the Cardinals haven't all the best of that then they have been throwing square baseballs in this series.

Says Giants Are Stronger. Huggins and his game catch may sweep the four winds, as they did against the Pirates in '27, but it still doesn't figure that way in the dope book.

The inferiority of the Cardinals rather than the superiority of the Red Wings has been the decisive factor thus far. As they wound up in the stadium yesterday, the Giants would have made a far better showing for the National league.

Many Happy Returns.
The Bigger the Better.
Wives of Convenience.
Big Boys and Girls.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE
(The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review.)

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE and his wife celebrated the twenty-third anniversary of their wedding on Thursday. For the first time their son, John, now working for a railroad, was not at home.

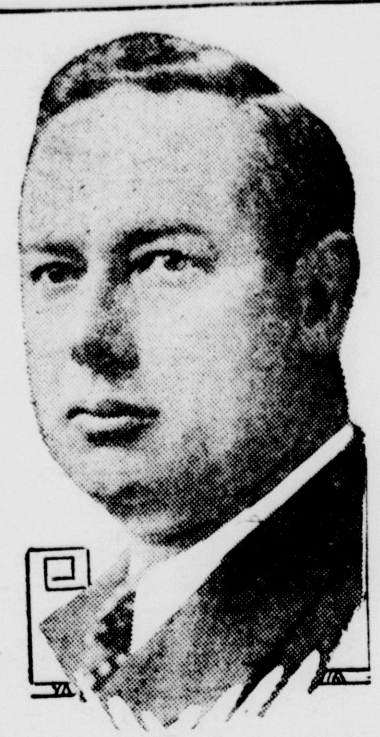

The nation wishes them many more anniversaries, with thanks to the president for good hard work and much common sense at a difficult time in the country's history, and thanks to Mrs. Coolidge for taking care of the president and representing American women so admirably in the White House.

IN BRITAIN the Anglo-Persian and Dutch Shell oil companies are gradually uniting. Wise Britain intends to build up an oil power strong enough to fight the world, and especially Standard Oil of America.

THORPE HITS AL SMITH ON IMMIGRATION

Washingtonville Labor Leader Speaks at G. O. P. Meet.

COURTROOM RALLY

Congressman Begg to Deliver Address at Salem.

Governor Alfred Smith's stand on a proposed change in immigration quotas was condemned by J. G. Thorpe, Washingtonville labor leader and a state G. O. P. worker, at a Republican rally in the municipal court room, Fourth and Market streets, at 8 o'clock last night.

Thorpe shared speaking honors with T. T. Jones, newspaper man, who asserted opposition to Smith was not because of his party affiliations nor his religion but because of his advocacy for a change in the prohibition laws which the speaker declared to be a "nullification of the eighteenth amendment."

Willis Davidson, chairman of the Republican committee, presided. Reports were submitted by W. H. Hull, of the headquarters committee, and George Buxton, of the finance committee.

Rally is Planned. Upon motion of D. F. White, the headquarters committee was instructed to place a sign across the street in front of the party headquarters in the Travelers' hotel, Fourth street.

Mrs. Ila Marshall Cronin reported a meeting planned for Salem on October 25 when Congressman James T. Begg, Sandusky, and Mrs. Claude Thompson will be speakers. She suggested that these two workers might be available for a rally in East Liverpool on October 24 or 26. Chairman Davidson was authorized to appoint a committee to arrange for a meeting.

Plans for registering voters were also discussed. Several precinct committees reported that women's organizations had been formed in their districts.

DESK SERGEANT AUFDERHEIDE, 69, TO GO ON PENSION LIST

Veteran Police Force Member Will Retire December 1.

GETS HALF PAY

Serves Nearly 29 Years as City Patrolman.

Henry Aufderheide, 69, dean of East Liverpool's 11-man police force, will be the first of the city's patrolmen to be retired when the police relief and pension fund become operative on Dec. 1.

Aufderheide is now in his 29th year of service, having been appointed by the late mayor William C. Davidson on April 13, 1900. If he stays on the job until Dec. 1, he will have served 28 years, seven months and 19 days.

He was born in Pittsburgh Nov. 10, 1859, and came to East Liverpool on April 9, 1888, as foreman of the cutting department of the Specialty Glass company, near Patterson field. He held this job until the factory was destroyed by fire on March 23, 1898. He was employed at the Golding & Sons flint mill for about two years before being named to the police force.

The police department was composed of six men, including Chief Thomas V. Thompson, when Aufderheide was appointed. Officers were paid $2 a day and were required to work 12 hours a day for six days and 18 hours on Saturday. They were given no day of rest or vacation. As men, patrolmen were required to purchase their own uniforms.

Aufderheide was on street duty until May 23, 1911, when he was assigned to office work and patrol driver. The nine-hour day arrangement with one day-a-week rest and 15-day vacation was put into effect in 1920, six years after Aufderheide became desk sergeant. Aufderheide has served under 10 mayors.

Elect Trustees Monday. Members of the police department will elect a board of five trustees from their own number Monday, to draft rules and regulations for the operation of the pension system. Aufderheide, having served for more than 25 years, will probably draw one-half of his regular salary, or $30 a month, as long as he lives, according to the plan of the police.

Funds for the maintenance of the pension system have been made available from benefit concerts and shows and also from a $2 monthly assessment which is paid into the fund by each member of the force.

Fall concert for the benefit of this fund will be given in the high school auditorium, Tuesday night, October 23, when six vocalists will appear here.

Whether the building will be occupied as a home for working girls or revert to the heirs on January 1, 1929, in keeping with the mandate of the Columbus county common pleas court, will depend upon action at this meeting to which the general public has been invited.

NOMINEE TELLS SOUTH THAT HE BELIEVES IN PROHIBITION

"I Wish It to Succeed," He Says in Tennessee.

50,000 AT RALLY

Reaffirms Attitude on Agriculture, Immigration, Tariff.

By William K. Hutchinson
ELIZABETHTON, Tenn., Oct. 6.—Invading Happy Valley of Tennessee rich in historic traditions, Herbert Hoover today made his major bid for southern electoral votes with a speech covering every issue of the presidential campaign.

Burns Every Wet Bridge. Speaking in a natural amphitheater on the site of the first free government in America, Hoover reaffirmed his pledge of governmental aid to stabilize agriculture, declared strongly against any increase in immigration quotas, urged a "strengthening" of the protective tariff, protested against governmental competition or interference with private business and came out dryer than ever on the prohibition issue.

In fact, Hoover cleared away all doubt as to his stand on prohibition. In five words, he burned every wet bridge behind him.

Whereas in his acceptance speech, he merely declared against "repeal" of the Eighteenth amendment, today he added: "I wish it to succeed." This was the high spot of his speech.

Discusses Southern Problems. The Republican nominee spoke to 50,000 persons, gathered from every corner of the south. He met them in the "cradle of free government," as the first constitutional government in the western hemisphere was organized in 1772 in this valley. Much of his speech was devoted to southern problems and his peroration in this respect was a direct appeal to the south to lay aside its partisan barriers, which have kept it Democratic since the Civil war.

Hoover dealt once with the water-power and public utility questions while touching on the subject of regulating business. He declared for the "conservation of governmentally-controlled natural resources" and for governmental regulation of "natural monopolies." He said nothing directly about governmental operation of public utilities nor government ownership of natural resources, although he did protest strongly against governmental competition with private business. This competition, he said, destroyed private initiative, under-

Letters To The Editor

Answers Mr. Long
Chester, W. Va., Oct. 5, 1928
Editor, Review,
East Liverpool, O.

Dear Sir:—
I read the article of Mr. Long, in your paper of last night, versus my second communication to you, pertaining to the statement made by the Rev. W. A. Sunday, at Clifton, Ohio. I shall touch briefly on the matter in the article of Mr. Long.
The first paragraph—"Article 1, section 51—is foreign to either of my two letters to you and consequently I shall not dwell on it."
The second paragraph, "Article 63, says: No religious test—is identical with what I had and is therefore a settled matter."
The third paragraph, "The carrying out of the Constitution" has nothing to do with what I said. I simply maintained that the prohibition laws can not be defended upon their merits and I quoted the words of President Coolidge, who upon being pressed by certain church people to enforce the prohibition laws, "No law can be enforced if it is not in the minds of the people."
In the fourth paragraph Mr. Long remarked that he does not agree with my statement that a non-religious person is a Protestant or a Catholic. Neither can I agree with that. I never made such an absurd statement. I did say that neither Jews nor non-religious are Protestants. A non-religious may protest against the Catholic church but that does not make him a Protestant. What is meant by a Protestant is one who is a member of a Protestant church.

In the fifth paragraph Mr. Long severely criticizes Al Smith's administration as governor of New York. I care not to go deep into it because there is plenty of politics in the different papers over the country to take of that. All I have to say is that New York state is Republican and how is it that Al Smith, a Democrat, was elected the fourth time as governor? Surely his administration must be satisfactory? Insofar as foreigners are concerned, according to Mr. Long's words, "What does the foreigner care for the Eighteenth amendment," he cares about as much for it as people who seem to ignore some other article of the Constitution by saying that a Catholic can not be elected President of the United States because this is a Protestant country.
In the sixth article Mr. Long did not seem to restrain from offering an insult. He quotes a certain Rev. John G. Rougtti of a certain St. Anthony's church as having violated the prohibition law by bringing liquors from Italy. He says further that the priest maintained he brought it to give to the sick when making sick calls. Priests do not take wine to the sick but Holy Communion under the form of bread which makes the case seem doubtful.
The Italian priest must have been under some powerful influence because he knew or should have known that his trunks would be searched. It could not have been drink because he said he did not touch it. Was it perhaps his thought of coming to a free country or was it because he left Italy in which people are not muzzled with a prohibition law? Or, could it have been that he referred to the Holy Scriptures in which we read that Christ drank wine, not grape juice? Maybe, since he said he wanted it for the sick, he referred to St. Paul to Timothy who said a little wine is good for the stomach's sake?

Even if true that has no bearing on the rest of the priests nor on my argument. We read sometimes too of Protestant ministers violating the same law but it has nothing to do with the other Protestant ministers. Justice demands that we judge not the whole by the part.
In the seventh article Mr. Long seems to want to put the public under impression that I am in favor of saloons. I made it very emphatic when I said that, from boyhood on, I have always looked upon saloons as abominable.
Now then, the whole discussion arose from the remark of the Rev. Mr. Sunday:—"Al Smith can not be elected president of the United States because he is a Catholic in a Protestant country." I put the question in both of my letters to the Review: Since when is this a Protestant state, how then can it be Protestant? country, state and church are separate. Mr. Long who came out versus my arguments, in his letters, could not answer it, consequently I consider the discussion closed and shall pay no heed to any further communication on this matter from Mr. Long.
So far again in defense of the Catholic people of this locality. We Catholics do not want to be looked upon as inferior people; we worship God according to our conscience. We do not want to be criticised because we do not think and worship as others would have us do. The constitution of our beloved country grants us freedom of religion and we care not to be dictated to by every Tom, Dick and Harry as to how we should worship God.
WM. J. SAUER.

Paterson Home Meeting

The fate of the Mary A. Patterson Memorial Christian home for working girls, erected at a cost of $367,000 by the late Monroe Patterson, probably will be determined at a public meeting which will be held in the municipal courtroom, Fourth and Market streets, at 7:30 o'clock Monday night.

For the purpose of determining whether there is sufficient interest in the movement to devise ways and means of furnishing the institution, no provision for which was made in the Patterson will, the trustees of the home association have called the session.

Unless the building is occupied on or before January 1, the property will revert to the heirs, according to a ruling made by the Columbiana county common pleas court.

If East Liverpool wants the Patterson home, which, in the opinion of many citizens, is needed, now is the time to act.

Political Hogwash

There is a lot of what, to use a somewhat crude expression, may be termed hogwash in presidential campaigns. This does not refer to party platforms particularly, although there has been few free from it, nor does it apply to the utterances of presidential candidates. If the presidential nominee of either of the two old parties makes a misstatement, it may be put down to ignorance of the subject of which he treats or a lack of political acumen, for any misstatement made by such a candidate is bound to react against him.

In using the term hogwash, reference is made to the thousand and one utterly inconsequential matters brought out during the progress of a campaign; to almost countless utterances, acts and incidents which in no way throw light on the comparative fitness of candidates for the presidency; to scenes and acts staged — let us be frank to say some times against the better judgment of candidates — upon which to predicate a news story or furnish an excuse for still or moving pictures.

Then again, resort is often made to spectacular acts or startling utterances for political effect. The very able president and sterling exponent of Americanism, Theodore Roosevelt, was not wholly guiltless of effects of the description last named. Much was forgiven him in this respect for the reason that he was one of the rare exceptions to the rule and had the personality to get away with it, but what he started has been going from bad to worse ever since.

It tells nothing of Mr. Hoover's fitness for the presidency to state that he refuses to kiss babies or to show his fondness for children by picturing him holding aloft a cute little girl. The fact that Governor Smith has been adopted by an Indian tribe means nothing, nor is there anything in a picture showing him wearing an Indian war bonnet. But the newspaper boys on the presidential trains must have something on which to base stories, and the photographers must have subjects for pictures, and thus a lot of trivialities are put into the campaign. We question if a vote ever was thus made, unless it was for the other fellow. We believe we know a case where a play to the crowd, the wish to show himself something of a sport, lost one candidate votes by the thousand.

One who, without ever taking active part in politics, from the side lines has watched the players in the political game for more years than many would be willing to confess, is bound even to question the value of the average political speech. A speech may stir up enthusiasm in the party of the one making it and hold votes already made, but it is to be questioned if any speech ever made as many votes as the average straw vote, and it may be said in this connection that straw votes are usually taken for the purpose of influencing voters and are often manipulated in favor of some particular candidate or candidates by those taking them, and very frequently, almost always, by many making the ballots.

There has been a lot in this campaign about whispering. To what does all of it amount? Not a thing, save at times to revert to the benefit of the candidate against whom the whispering is directed. Mr. Lincoln was eminently correct in his oft-quoted statement about fooling the people. The story that Mr. Hoover is a drinker is repudiated by the campaign manager of the party opposed to him. The story that Governor Smith was in a beastly state of intoxication at the Syracuse fair was manifestly a lie upon its face, as was that story about Mr. Curtis and his flask at the Pimlico race track. What is to be accomplished by such stories, by one or all of them? It is worth recalling that the presidential candidate, who of all candidates was the most wantonly slandered and libeled, who was made the target of a whispering campaign compared with which the present is trifling, received the largest popular vote ever given a candidate for any office in all history. And, in this connection, it is worth nothing also that, throughout the entire campaign in which he stood for the presidency, he never spoke his opponent's name or made slurring or disrespectful reference to him.

No, the voters of the land are not going to be fooled by claptrap, by the inconsequential, nor by misstatements of fact. They are not going to be misled by the statements of those who are seeking temporary notoriety. They are not going to be won by attacks on candidates nor is the sympathy game going to prove efficacious; nor will it profit the candidate who erects straw men to tear them down. The voters of the land, regardless of all the hurrah boys, hubbub and noise; the brass bands and torchlight processions; unkindful of all charges uttered from the stump or whispered about, are going to decide the issue by selecting for the presidency the man they down in their hearts believe to be the better fitted for the presidency, the man whose election, they feel, will work to the best interests of all the people and the general prosperity of the country.

Political hogwash does not win presidential campaigns.

HASKIN DAILY LETTER

By Frederick J. Haskin

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 6.—From 1800 to 1824 the Democratic-Republican forces elected three presidents, Jefferson, Madison, and Monroe, for two terms each, and the Federalist party almost disappeared. Monroe's second election would have been unanimous had not one New Hampshire elector decided that no man but Washington should have the unanimous choice. The nation grew and prospered. It became evident that the 1824 election would be made from personal popularity rather than on a party basis.

The twelfth amendment, following the Jefferson-Burr election, provided separate voting for president and vice-president and eliminated the cause of the 1800 debacle, but it seemed likely that in 1824 there might be no majority of electors for president, and the election would then go to the house, which under the amendment must choose among the three men having the most electoral votes.

Candidates sprang up to right and left. Monroe was besought to take a third term but adhered to precedent and declined. John Quincy Adams, his secretary of state, was a candidate, and so was William H. Crawford, secretary of war. Henry Clay, speaker of the house, and Andrew Jackson, senator from Tennessee, were the favorites of the west. Monroe had a hard time remaining neutral and Crawford especially accused him of faithlessness in not supporting the war secretary. Monroe considered removing him from the cabinet and is said to have once ordered him out of the White house, although rivals thought the president was favoring Crawford.

A caucus of congressmen nominated Crawford, the last time this method was tried. The Tennessee legislature proposed Jackson. South Carolina offered first William Lowmder and then John C. Calhoun. The latter decided later to seek the vice presidency and ran on both the Adams and Jackson tickets and won a majority for the second office. Massachusetts had an unpledged ticket for Adams and Ohio proposed Clay after a futile gesture for DeWitt Clinton.

Adams sought to win Jackson to accept the vice presidency and gave a great testimonial dinner to the popular soldier on the anniversary of the Battle of New Orleans, but Old Hickory decided to fight for first place. Jackson had the most popular and electoral votes, but far short of half the total. The results were:

	Popular Votes	Electoral Votes
Jackson	155,872	99
Adams	105,321	84
Crawford	44,282	41
Clay	46,587	37

Their being no party division, many states split their votes as widely as they had in the first three elections after the nation was founded. Adams had all New England and most of New York. Crawford had chiefly Virginia and Georgia. Clay's strength was mostly Kentucky and Ohio, and Jackson had Pennsylvania, New Jersey, most of Maryland, the rest of the west, and the south.

The election being thrown into the house, which had no more party division than the country, the vote was taken in secret. Thirteen states went for Adams, 7 for Jackson, 4 for Crawford.

Clay, who was speaker, had run fourth, so the choice was Adams, Jackson, or Crawford.

When the house voted, Adams won on the first ballot. He declared to the committee which notified him of his election that if the constitution had provided a method whereby he could do it, he would have resigned and resubmitted his case to the people.

The Jackson adherents were bitter about the result, and it marked a separating point between rival wings of the long established Democratic-Republican Party. The Jacksonites retained simply the name of Democrats, and the Adams-Clay group became known first as National Republicans but soon adopted the name of Whigs. Old line of cleavage were soon to be renewed. The charter of the United States bank was nearing its termination and the Democrats would get back to the Jeffersonian basis of opposition to centralized money power. The tariff was also coming to the front as an issue, with New England the center of high tariff doctrine, the southern planters and western farmers opposing it.

Monroe's last administration had been nicknamed "The Era of Good Feeling." The 1824 election had put an end to good feeling, and party lines were rapidly drawn for the election battles of the future. Jackson wanted the constitution amended to prevent any more elections going to congress for settlement. Straight popular elections were his ideal but he never brought about a change in the existing system.

Tomorrow: The Extension of the Suffrage.

NEW YORK Day By Day

By O. O. McIntyre.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Few are conscious of the remarkable strides the Negro has made in the theatre in the past few years. Ten years ago their historic ability was confined to a few dinky and abandoned burlesque theatres above 125th street in Harlem.

About six years ago they landed down town as far as 62nd street, where Miller and Lyle wrote, produced and appeared in "Shuffle Along"—the first of the septa shows to attract a white audience. It became a rage and made the two colored sponsors a neat sum.

Wistful Florence Mills with her flashing jet black eyes then appeared in a cabaret revue over the Winter Garden, and Broadway society packed the place. Her subsequent stardom in an all-colored show on Broadway and later triumphs in London and Paris are now theatrical history.

Two brown skin shows had long runs on 42nd street this season, appearing cheek by jowl with the best theatrical offerings. One was the dramatic and poignant "Porgy," which came back for a return engagement, and the other was Lew Leslie's "Blackbirds of 1928."

The latter brought out Aida Ward, called the successor to Florence Mills, and Adelaide Hall, another dusky singing sensation. Alvin Karpis, an ebony tap dancer whose nimble feet lifted him out of cheap vaudeville to a star commanding $1,400 a week. To see him tap dance up a pair of stairs is a grand treat.

Paul Robeson is another distinguished actor coming out of what is known as the Smoke Era. There are a dozen cabaret revues in Harlem bringing night white audiences from down town. What is impressive is the enthusiasm of the colored performer for the job.

Most Negro chorus girls are really catpersons and could pass for white in white shows. Some comedians are so light they wear burnt cork. There

YOUR HEALTH

An Ounce of Prevention Is Worth A Pound of Cure.

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland.

One of the many cheering things about modern life is the great number of organizations established to lessen disease and to promote the usefulness of the individual. Among such institutions is the "National Society for the Prevention of Blindness."

Not long ago it was my pleasure to read the twentieth annual report of this society. It is really amazing to learn what strides have been made towards the goal of eyesight conservation.

Twenty years ago the infected eyes of new-born babies were the chief cause for loss of sight. Nearly one quarter of all cases of blindness came from this one ailment—"ophthalmia neonatorum," as it is called. Less than one-half as many cases are met today.

It is gratifying indeed, it shows that better maternity care and preventative measures at birth have had their results. But we must not be satisfied until this disease as a cause for blindness shall be completely removed. It is scientifically possible to accomplish this. The National Committee will not be satisfied until that is done.

The report to which I have referred shows how important it is to eliminate the eye hazards in industry. It is estimated that of the 100,000 blind men and women in the United States, approximately fifteen percent lost their sight while engaged in one or another of the many forms of industrial activity.

It is good to know that most employers of labor are cooperating in this commendable effort to save eyes, and eyesight. More and more efforts are being made to prevent accidents, particularly those which are liable to damage the eyes.

Proper lighting is essential to safety. By this I mean that there must be light enough to make clear all the details of the work and of the machinery, so that the worker may keep track of everything about him. Then, again, it is just as important to regulate the lights so not to produce harmful glare.

When I tell you that more than three millions of persons are engaged in industries most of which present serious health and accident hazards, you can see how important it is to guard them against harm. This activity will mean much in saving good eyes and eyesight.

Another activity of the committee is its campaign against trachoma. If you had seen as many cases of this disease as I have, you would rejoice that systematic efforts are being made to do away with it.

Trachoma is known to the public as "granulated eyelids." In certain sections of America, particularly in the mountainous regions of the South, it is very prevalent.

The National Committee is carrying on the extensive program, attacking at its source this mutilating and painful disease. Let us wish them well and aid all we can.

Nothing makes for more unhappiness than the dreadful calamity of blindness. Whatever reduces that dread affliction is worthy of our applause.

Other Editors Say

For "Promotion" of Checkers.

For a game that has existed and flourished since 1600 B. C., checkers would seem to be in little need of financial aid to perpetuate it; yet a Portland, Maine, man has left $1,000 to the local Y. M. C. A. for this very purpose. Edward K. Chapman, known as the "Christmas Tree King" because he was a leader in that industry and waxed wealthy on it, evidently loved the game of checkers and feared its decline, at least in Portland, after he passed away.

If the bequest is used judiciously, the Portland "Y" is assured checker sets for a long time to come. Deposited in a savings bank, the interest amounts to about $40 a year which, at the minimum cost of 20 cents a set, would give the "Y" 200 new sets a year. That is a lot of checkers and the upshot probably will be that the executors of the will will buy fewer sets, but more elaborate and expensive ones.

The Egyptians played checkers as early as 1600 B. C. and a form of it was popular in ancient Greece. The game also is found among the native tribes of the interior of New Zealand. In France, it is called "les dames," because it once was a favorite game of the ladies. In Scotland, it retains great popularity and the same is true of England, China, Poland, Spain, Italy and Turkey. If all the checkerboards to be found in fire stations in America were laid end to end, there would be no alarms answered. Mr. Chapman's bequest probably is greatly appreciated by the habitués of Portland's "Y" but the thousands of quiet, unheeded and unsung checker players all over the world will smile at that clause in his will which mentions "the promotion of the game of checkers." Wherever two addicts can promote 20 cents between them for a board and set of men, there will be found a game of checkers in progress.—Columbus Dispatch.

Once Overs

Discredited All Scandal.

Said one woman to another: "I am glad that I have lived long enough in your town to know that the tales told of you by your next door neighbor are not true."

Pretty broad and uncompromising statement, wasn't it?
 The newcomer had been told lies about some of those whom she would be likely to meet, and to what purpose?

In the first place beware of the woman who speaks of any one in her home town or neighborhood when conversing with a visitor or a recent resident.

It is not a kindness, nor is it intended as such.

People who are old enough to move from one place to another and establish a home ought to be able to protect themselves from undesirable persons without the aid of certain old residents.

Remember that when the mean tale of scandalous story is heard. Also remember that the one who brings you scandal is looking for something to take away, and be on your guard.

If people would go around among newcomers saying truthfully that so-and-so is a good person to know and tell her why, it might help some.

If you can become acquainted with the right sort, the others don't count, but the scandalmonger thinks to strengthen himself or herself by mean tales, while the reverse is true in the end.

RAVENNA MAN CONFESES HE PUSHED WIFE, SET HER AFIRE

Carl Eschinger, 62,
Clears Up Portage
County Murder.

GASOLINE USED
Fall Down Stairway
Believed to Have Killed Woman.

RAVENNA, O., Oct. 6.—One of the most shocking murders in Portage county history has been cleared up today, police say, by the confession of Carl Eschinger, 62, that he pushed his wife, Minnie, 62, down a flight of stairs at their home after a quarrel, poured kerosene on her clothing and set her afire.

The murder occurred about noon yesterday, but was not reported until late in the afternoon when Eschinger asked a neighbor to call a doctor and undertaker for his wife. Police were summoned and Eschinger's arrest and confession followed, police say.

The victim was Eschinger's third wife. She is believed to have been killed by falling down the stairway. Her body was not badly burned, authorities said.

Eschinger's face was scratched and he has a bullet wound in his leg. The scratches resulted from his struggle with his aged wife, investigators believe, while he said the bullet wound was an accident. Police suspect, however, that he attempted suicide.

much as the old Mamma Octopus was worth.

Government should supervise and control business, not foolishly interfere with its growth by treating it as Chinese used to treat the feet of their daughters.

The motto of the United States in everything should be, "the BIGGER THE BETTER."

THE REV. DR. POLING, of the Fifth Avenue Marble Collegiate church in New York, is horrified, as he well may be, by lack of morality aboard some barges in the Hudson river.

The men are paid too little, forcing 15 to live in one cabin, which is bad enough.

But there is worse. On some barges, says the Rev. Dr. Poling, "wives of convenience are supplied to the men." They are not real wives.

AMERICANS are not going backward, PHYSICALLY, at least. Girls are taller and stronger than ever. And among 100 candidates reporting for freshman crew practice at Cornell Thursday, 48 were six feet tall; a good sign.

A wellbalanced body, of good size, about six feet, is the right sort.

In old days, a Napoleon had to be short. If he had been a little taller he would have been killed by the first of the bullets that went an inch above his head.

NO WONDER American boys and girls grow. The nation's food bill is TWENTY-THREE THOUSAND MILLION DOLLARS.

Forty-seven thousand, nine hundred and eighty-five factories of different kinds turn out food products, assisted by 20,000,000 farms. And 22 per cent of the food plants produce nine-tenths of the food products. Shiver at that, if you dread monopoly.

IT IS a rich country that can afford to eat twenty-three billions worth of food in a year. Much of it, unfortunately, is wasted.

This country, after all its spending for food, clothing and other necessities, has a "social surplus" of TEN THOUSAND MILLION DOLLARS, more than the country needs for its living. That is what builds up values, savings bank accounts and Wall Street prices.

DR. GRATZ, editor of the Epworth Herald, blames American parents for this "unspanked" generation. Says he:

"The youth of today learns lessons of banditry, petting, free love and divorce at the feet of the older generation."

That's a little severe, but parents might find a way to keep young children from smoking, to say nothing of drinking vile bootleg poisons.

Inability of American parents to control their children is a danger to the next generation.

WHAT is the meaning of a clear desk? The answer depends on the man sitting at the desk. John D. Rockefeller "wanted to see a man with his feet on a clear desk, busy thinking up new plans to make money for Standard Oil."

Mr. Rockefeller himself may have had an untidy desk. A man of his power certainly tried to do more than any one man could do.

Never make a hard and fast rule about your employee's desk, clear or littered, or about anything else. Hard and fast rules have caused many employers to lose good men.

FOUR ARE HURT IN AUTO WRECK

Crash Occurs Near Baptist Church in Penn Avenue.

Four persons were injured when automobiles driven by Harold Severs, 1911 Ohio avenue, and James Hood, Pennsylvania avenue, crashed near the Second Baptist church in Pennsylvania avenue at 5 o'clock last night.

Mrs. Alice Severs, wife of one driver, sustained a hip injury, while Mrs. Frank Severs, her mother-in-law, suffered a sprained ankle. Frank, 2 son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Severs, had two teeth knocked out, while his father was bruised. Harold Severs and Hood were not hurt.

The Severs car was descending the Pennsylvania avenue hill into East End enroute to their home when Hood, who lives near the scene of the accident, is said to have attempted to cross from the right to the left side of the road to park his automobile.

The injured were assisted to the office of an East End physician and later to their homes. The Severs' car, a sedan, which was badly damaged, was removed by the Penn Avenue Motor Sales wrecker.

Police investigated the crash but no arrests were made.

Judge Acts After Hearing Story of Shooting.

Following gun play which is said to have occurred near the Youngstown & Ohio River railroad freight station in Moore street, Thursday night, Miss Nora Kelly, formerly of Parkersburg, was ordered from the city by Municipal Judge J. C. Hanley today.

Miss Kelly was arrested by police yesterday, following reports of a shooting affray. Police charge that the girl shot at Albert Watkins, Ridgely avenue, as he sat in his automobile in Moore street. Miss Kelly claims that she pointed the gun at the ground when she fired to frighten him.

The Kelly woman, police say, has been employed as a housekeeper by Watkins. She was arrested upon affidavit by Chief of Police McDermott, who charged her with shooting within the city limits.

Direct Appeal for Votes.

Hoover praised the growth of the south. He said its record was impressive and he gave numerous statistics to prove his point. Then came a direct appeal for votes.

"I realize that I come here as the candidate of a political party with whose policies many of you within my sight and many within sound of my voice have often differed," Hoover said. "I respect your views regarding that difference. Yet so closely welded in common interest are the pressing issues of our nation today that it should be no longer unusual for a citizen of any region to vote for a president who represents the principles which correspond with his convictions."

Given Enthusiastic Welcome.

Hoover was given an enthusiastic welcome when he arrived here at noon from Washington.

Amid crowds jamming the railroad tracks and the streets, Hoover arrived at Childers at 11:30 and then motored here. He was given a luncheon by the Chamber of Commerce.

Work of organizing the colored voters was discussed by J. A. Goode and John W. Hayden, spokesmen for a dozen Negroes, who attended the rally. Chairman Davidson praised the colored voters upon their representation.

Former Service Men Organized.

Prosecuting Attorney Robert M. Brookes explained the organization formed in every state of the union to rally the ex-service men in support of the Republican ticket at the November election. Sheriff George Wright, he said, had been named chairman of the Eighteenth district organization, while Irvin Vorndran, bookkeeper in the county auditor's office, had been chosen to take charge of the work in Columbiana county. Leaders had been selected in each county.

Mrs. Cronin reported on organization work among the Republican women in the Eighteenth district of which she is chairman. She also discussed the organization which has been set up at Columbus for work among colored voters.

GOV. AL SMITH RENEWS WAR ON "WHISPERS"

Drags Into Open Story
About Radio
Speech.

NAMES MINISTER
Albany Pastor Challenges Nominee on Personal Habits.

By George R. Holmes.
ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 6.—Governor Smith wrote another chapter today in his war against the "whispering campaign."

Again it concerned his personal habits. Through his counsel, Edward G. Griffin, the Democratic nominee dragged into the open another "whisper," which has been going the rounds to the effect that he once attempted to broadcast over the radio in an intoxicated condition.

The story was accredited to the Rev. Manning E. Van Nostrand, pastor of Emmanuel Baptist church in Albany. Dr. Van Nostrand denied making the statement when questioned in Governor Smith's office, but in a spirited statement today he plainly challenged the governor on his personal habits.

Latest Chapter Written.
The latest chapter in the "whispering campaign," as revealed in the statements from Griffin and from the minister, follows:

Griffin's statement:
"A communication was received at the executive chamber stating that Rev. Manning E. Van Nostrand, pastor of the Emmanuel Baptist church of Albany, N. Y., had made a statement at the Bible conference held at Winona Lake, Winona, Indiana, that Governor Alfred E. Smith, of New York, was so intoxicated when he was trying to talk over the radio immediately after he was nominated at Houston that two men had to hold him. Upon receipt of this communication the Rev. Mr. Van Nostrand at the request of the governor visited Governor Smith in the executive chamber. The governor in the presence of his secretary, George J. Graves, and myself then read the communication to the Rev. Mr. Van Nostrand and asked the Rev. Mr. Van Nostrand the direct question: 'Did you ever make and such statement about me?' The Rev. Mr. Van Nostrand said: 'I never said it.'"

Affidavit Submitted.

"Since that time there has been received the following affidavit:
"State of Indiana, county of Carroll.
"The undersigned, being first duly sworn on oath, deposes and says: . . . on or about August 23, 1928, while in attendance at a Bible conference held at Winona Lake, Ind., heard one, Dr. Van Nostrand, supposedly from Albany, N. Y., make a statement substantially as follows:

"That Mr. Smith (referring to Alfred E. Smith of New York) was so intoxicated when he was trying to talk over the radio the first Sunday after he was nominated at Houston that two men had to assist him in standing. Also that on another occasion in the railroad station where Mr. Smith was preparing to board a train he was much under the influence of liquor and was passing it around to men and ladies in his party.

"Further the deponent sayeth not.

(Signed) "MRS. A. J. WICKARD.
"Subscribed and sworn to before me this 17th day of Sept., 1928.
(Signed) "FRANK POUNDSTONE,
"Notary Public."

Pastor Called to Capitol

When this was brought to the Rev. Mr. Van Nostrand's attention, he is issued the following statement:

"I was requested to call at the office of Governor Smith at the capitol, in this city. He read to me an extract from a letter from the New York headquarters of the Democratic National committee, in which it was stated in substance that Indiana was in a ferment due to a statement made by me in that state to the effect that the Sunday following his nomination, the governor broadcasted over the radio and was so intoxicated that it required two men to hold him up.

"The governor asked me if I had made that statement. I said that I had not.

"Upon that occasion the governor did not ask me if I had made any similar statements or if I had made any other statement concerning him or to the effect that he had been intoxicated or to the effect that he drank.

Minister's Statement

"I did make the statement in Indiana that I had been informed that upon one occasion when Governor Smith had broadcast that he was so intoxicated that he had to be supported by two persons.

"I also made the statement in Indiana that I had been informed that on the Sunday following his nomination the governor went to New York and that when he was in the Albany station he had been drinking.

"I also made the statement that in my opinion if anyone asked the governor the direct question as to whether or not during his occupancy of that high office he had used intoxicating liquors or had been a drinking man that the governor would admit that he had done so.

"I further stated in Indiana that I had never read or heard any denial by the governor himself that he was a drinking man; but the only denials I had heard of were made by others and I did not believe the governor would deny it if he were asked the direct question."

There the matter rested today. Whether Governor Smith will concern himself further in the matter appeared problematical. He is devoting all his attention at present to the preparations for his second major speaking tour, a trip that will take him into the border states next week. The itinerary probably will be announced within a few days.

WHITE IS QUOTED ON SMITH PRAISE

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—High praise for Governor Alfred E. Smith from the pen of William Allen White, celebrated Kansas editor whose campaign shafts have been among the strongest aimed at the Democratic nominee, was cited by Democratic managers today with comment.

In a new book, just ten days off the presses, White compares Governor Smith with Abraham Lincoln, and Andrew Jackson in political background. He treats Tammany with the declaration that whatever might be said of it in the period of Smith's training, "it did make square men."

"And as far as the game and its morals went," White's published sketch of Smith continues, "it was as square as the game that Lincoln learned, or Jackson, in American politics."

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Enthusiastic buying of Hudson Motors, Hupp and Studebaker at the highest prices of the current move, furious bidding for the "selected" specialties and a higher range of prices for the steel and copper stocks at the beginning of trading today was the stock market's response to the extremely favorable industrial and business summaries of the week and business bureaus of the week-end.

While Chrysler was temporarily held back by profit-taking, the other members of the motor quartet—Hupp, Hudson and Studebaker ploughed and plunged their way ahead to a new high level of prices in a heavy turnover for the half-session. Numerous 10,000 to 25,000-share blocks of favor the stocks appeared in the line-up stock transactions and in many cases the first prices of the day showed increases of 3/4 points above Friday's close.

Lorain Patrolman Pleads
Not Guilty in Gun
Attack.

ELYRIA, O., Oct. 6.—Louis Cicco, Lorain patrolman, pleaded not guilty when arraigned here today on a charge of shooting with intent to wound Miss Betty Heywood, 22, of Elyria. Cicco was released under $250 bond for trial next Tuesday.

Cicco and two other members of a special prohibition enforcement squad operating under Mayor J. C. Standen, of Lorain, were stationed at the Lorain city limits Wednesday night of last week when an automobile in which Miss Heywood was a passenger was fired on. The officers say the car refused to stop when they hailed it. One of the bullets struck Miss Heywood at the base of her skull. Though recovering from the wound, she is reported suffering from impaired eyesight at her home here.

Patrolman Walter Knitter and Deputy Sheriff Frank Kledy were with Cicco when the shooting occurred. Both are charged with shooting with intent to wound, but neither has been indicted.

State Senator George Bender, of Cleveland, has asked that the state conduct a special grand jury investigation of the case, and declares that in his opinion Knitter and Kledy should be held equally responsible with Cicco.

It had been at first supposed that Clark had accidentally discharged his shotgun, the charge entering his chest and causing death, but subsequent investigation disclosed the fact that Clark's gun was still loaded when his body was found and that there were no powder burns on his clothing.

Germany's Birth Rate Still Shows Sinking Tendency

BERLIN.—The rate of births in Germany last year sank to the level of that of France, which has the lowest birth rate in Europe, and still shows a sinking tendency. While the provinces show a steady decline in the number of births, statistics just published for 1926-27 reveal that the rate of death in Berlin and a number of the big industrial centers of Germany was even higher than the birth rate. The war and the years following have shattered a tradition sacred to the Germany of the Empire—large families.

Baseball Moratorium Declared As Series Rivals Head West

Zachary Will Probably Oppose Haines Sunday

Alexander, Nemesis of Yankees in 1926 Series, is Chased by New Yorkers; Mitchell Stars in Relief Role.

By Davis J. Walsh.

EN ROUTE TO ST. LOUIS, Oct. 6.—This was armistice day on both the eastern and western fronts, a moratorium of twenty-four hours having been declared so that the manly heroes of the 1928 world series drama might be transported westward for the third game of the Yankee-Cardinal duel in St. Louis tomorrow. In consequence, the possibility of further casualties was reduced to a question of whether or not some able athlete might swallow the knife instead of the peas. The moratorium was a distinct break for the Cardinals. They already had lost about all they cared to contemplate, including two ball games.

Possibly the morale of the Cards was unimpaired by the fact that Sherdel had another hard luck game blown from under him, on the opening day. Both Sherdel and his ball club became considerably injured to this experience in the 1926 series between the game clubs.

Alex's Delivery Solved.

The incident of Thursday meant that the pair of them would have to start all over again looking for something that Sherdel should have had long ago.

They could preserve no such philosophy claim in the face of Alexander's collapse yesterday. Here was the pitcher that was presumed to have the Yanks on the hip. He was the pitcher who twice beat the Yankees, going away, in the 1926 series, and then without a single day's rest took over the situation in the late innings of the final game and pitched the Cards into the title.

It goes without saying that he won't do that again, after what happened to him yesterday. The Yankees swarmed all over this gallant old campaigner and sent him out of there in 2 1/3 innings for a debit of six runs, and, perforce, the ball game.

Alexander isn't through in this series yet. He probably will be back as a finishing pitcher when hardened nerves and a calm head may mean the difference between victory and defeat. The relief pitching of Mitchell in yesterday's late innings clearly indicated what was likely to be the standpoint. Jess Haines will go out there tomorrow with his knuckler and a good chance of repeating his 1926 victories over the Yankees.

Haines' Knuckler May Work.

Ordinarily a fast ball pitcher, Haines threw them off the knuckles two years ago and incidentally threw the Yankees off their stride. They always were a club to be irked by anything savoring of the unique and probably will put in a somewhat uncomfortable afternoon tomorrow. The following day, of course, they will get Sherdel again, with Mitchell ready to go once more in the St. Louis finale on Tuesday. After that it may be that the next St. Louis pitcher will be the man who opens the 1929 season at Sportsman's field next April. For the way these two clubs are going, a sixth game is not among the distinct probabilities.

Sherdel pitched a fine ball game and lost because of the climax hitting of Ruth and Gehrig. Yesterday this pair ran amuck again in facing Alexander, with Durst, Bengough and Menzel also joining the prevailing jollity. The Yanks are hitting them hard and far in the pinches. The Cards aren't hitting them anywhere at any time. Even pitchers like Sherdel and Haines can't do much about this, unless the Cardinal attack undergoes a hurried reform. And with the Yankees needing only two victories in the remaining five games, the reform, of necessity, will have to be very hurried.

Steubenville Pug to Substitute in Monday Show.

George Compton, lightweight, scheduled to box Bobby Belford, Alliance boy, in the six-round semi-final at the Eagles' Monday night, is out with a broken jaw bone and, as a result, Matchmaker Tom McDonough has been forced to substitute Harry Morris, a Steubenville pug.

Tony Norman, who boxed Pancho Villa and Frankie Genaro in main bouts in Pittsburgh will arrive Sunday in Midland where he will hold a few preliminary workouts. Andy Tomasky, his opponent in the eight-round final here, will limber up Sunday afternoon at the Grand Billiards gym.

The complete card for the fights follows:

Main bout—Andy Tomasky, Wilmerding, Pa., vs. Tony Norman, Pittsburgh, eight rounds at 120 pounds.
Semi-final—Harry Morris, Steubenville, vs. Bobby Belford, Alliance, at 130 pounds.
Second prelim—Freddie Edwards, Chester, vs. Ivo Anthony, East Liverpool, four rounds at 132 pounds.
First prelim—Kenny Davis, East Liverpool, vs. Nick Caruso, Midland, at 128 pounds.

Yost's Charges Play Team He Once Coached

Ohio Wesleyan to Invade Michigan Stronghold.

DELAWARE, O., Oct. 6.—Ohio Wesleyan's first successful football coach and the most successful coach which the Fighting Bishops have had in recent years will clash when Ohio Wesleyan and the University of Michigan eleven meet at Ann Arbor today. Fielding H. "Hurricane" Yost, coached at Ohio Wesleyan in 1907 and made a record which was unequalled here until the series of Gauthier successes began in 1922.

Under Yost's coaching Ohio Wesleyan defeated Ohio State, 6 to 0, and tied the University of Michigan, 0 to 0, with Yost himself playing a tackle on the Wesleyan team against Michigan. As a result of this game the University of Michigan first became interested in Fielding H. Yost.

George Gauthier, Ohio Wesleyan mentor who has turned out a series of Buckeye champions, has crossed Yost's path before. Gauthier was in part responsible for the only two gridiron defeats which Michigan State college ever has been able to register against the University of Michigan.

With Gauthier as quarterback, M. S. C. defeated Michigan 13 to 7 in 1913. Two years later when Gauthier was coaching the Michigan State backfield, the Lansing eleven defeated Michigan 24 to 0.

Although his team is handicapped by numerous injuries, Gauthier will take his squad to Ann Arbor to play to win. He sees an outside chance for victory for Ohio Wesleyan veterans will play to avenge the 33 to 0 defeat which as greenhorns they suffered at Michigan's hands last year.

Charles Wertz, Toledo, star halfback for the Bishops, is definite out of the Michigan game due to an infected foot. Bob Wald, Columbus, another halfback, may be able to play for a part of the game, but even this is doubtful.

Banks Increase Use of Airplane Mail Service

CHICAGO—Banks rank among the largest air transport users and they report many varied uses for airplane service, chief of which is the transportation of approximately $24,000,000 worth of negotiable paper and interest-bearing securities to Wall Street each day, a survey by the American Air Transport association has revealed. Interest for the one to three days saved by air mail and express runs into millions annually.

Banks send checks, drafts, notes for collection and credit, advices of payment, important and rush letters, shipping documents and securities. Insurance companies are now rushing death claim checks to beneficiaries by air mail and they also use the new form of transportation for applications, releases, policy contracts and proofs of loss, policies to distant offices, policy loans and cash values, surety and contract bonds, legal papers, farm mortgages, reinsurance claims and for other purposes. Valuable and registered packages and mail are carried in special compartments and shipments are guarded at each airport.

Nearly $5,000,000 worth of flash lights and batteries were sent from this to other countries in the past year.

Three hundred children recently took part in a fishing competition at Oxford, England.

Pitt Offense Smoothed Out For Bethany

Panthers Will Spot Bisons Big Weight Advantage.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Oct. 6.—A different Pitt football team from the one which played Thiel last week will face Bethany College here Saturday.

Coach Sutherland has smoothed out the Panther offense and drilled his men in the fine points of aerial defense. Averaging around 180 pounds, Pitt's fighting line will more than make up the weight handicap held by the Bisons in the coming game. Although the Panthers' play was spotty against Thiel they are expected to show considerable improvement Saturday.

Several changes from the lineup which started the opening game will be made for the Bethany tilt. Eddie Baker, Nanticoke sophomore, will start at center in place of Barnes who is bothered with a shoulder injury received last Saturday. Ray Montgomery will be found at his accustomed tackle post.

Bethany, with a 20 pound weight advantage, brings a strong eleven to oppose the Panthers. Assistant Coach Bowser of the Panthers scouted the Bisons in their game against Wash-Jeff last week and predicts a real test for Sutherland's men.

What was scheduled for a warm-up game before the West Virginia tussle a week from Saturday, may turn out to be a stiff battle for Pitt.

Probable lineup:

Pitt.	Bethany.

Montgomery	LT

Baker	C
Di Meolo	RG
Getto	RT
Guarino	RE
Edwards	QB
Rooney	LH

Expect 10,000 At Mt. Union, Michigan Tilt

New Stadium Addition Will be Dedicated.

ALLIANCE, O., Oct. 6.—A sadly defeated but a far wiser football team representing Mount Union college will meet the University of Michigan junior varsity at Alliance today. The game will open Mount Union's home schedule and will dedicate the new addition to the Mount stadium. A record breaking crowd of 10,000 is expected.

The Michigan team is sure to rate with the Allegheny eleven to whom Mount lost last Saturday by a 32 to 0 score, but the experience the Purple gained in that defeat should enable the Mounts to make a different performance against the Wolverines.

It Never Pays

Romance in New York

By GILBERT ROGERS

But if he came in, found her here with Shevlin, and Shevlin told—! She threw one swift, imploring look, a look of agonized appeal.

Shevlin leaned forward. He whispered rapidly: "Don't be a fool, Sally! Get into that room—I'll send him away. He'll never know. Why—you can marry him a dozen times over afterwards, if you want to. But stay here with me—let me be good to you! . . . If you won't," he shrugged.

Her brain wavered and reeled. She felt a choking sensation seize her throat, she could not speak. She knew what that shrug meant—the letter—he would show the letter—

Her eyes gazed at Shevlin but they did not see him now.

"I've got to be brave," her mind was wearily saying. "I've got to face this. It will be over soon. And—some day he would have had to know. He'll forgive me—if Shevlin tells. How can he help forgiving me—when I love him so?" And all at once as if in a dream she saw Newport again, and all her gay good times, the lovely things she had had to wear, the bewildering things she had done. Only now she was paying for everything—everything!

Then the dream was shattered, for Jerry stood there on the threshold, facing her, smiling at her.

She forgot everything. She sprang up, went towards him, felt his hands close around hers, and drew that little instant of protection and happiness out of the turmoil of her distress.

Her lips were ashen she knew, and her smile was not really a smile! But she tried to talk, naturally, easily: "Jerry—imagine our meeting like this—why, I'm so glad—"

"Oh, I got back to Newport," he explained awkwardly, "and dropped in on you to say I had to go to New York. And your friend—Mrs. Brooke—told me you'd gone there yourself, and suggested that I'd probably find you at this address."

He was glancing towards Shevlin, frowning a little, waiting for an introduction. But Sally was too confused, too frightened to notice. Only one thought filled her—to get away, to get away quickly, with Jerry. Away from Shevlin.

"I was just going," she stammered. "In fact—well, perhaps you and I—"

Jerry's look was puzzled now, as if Shevlin's stillness were something tangible that could be felt, or something that hung in the somber room like an accusation or a sneer.

"Anything the matter?" Jerry had cleared his throat. "No, nothing. Nothing. Only, I'd like to—that is, we ought—"

Shevlin's heavy laugh, sardonic and unexpected, shattered the silence. Then it was more silent than before in the somber room with the heavy dark curtains.

"See here," Jerry said after the pause. "Something is the matter. What is it?" His tone was very quiet and level.

It was Dan Shevlin who answered. "Nothing at all, just as she told you. I was merely amused at the speed with which a really clever girl shifts her lovers. Having just said good-by to me and this apartment, it seems that you are the next? Fast work, my dear!"

Instinctively drawn, the words snapped with insinuations. The colour swept into Jerry's face, and a big blue vein stood out on his forehead. Only it seemed to Sally that she was not nervous any longer, but numb, strangely calm.

"It's happened," she thought. "It's happened!" And now she did not dare meet Jerry's eyes.

But they were not on her. They blazed upon Shevlin. With something like a roar he had stepped forward, his hands clenched.

Shevlin did not move. He was cool, as only he could be cool.

"Take that back! Take that back! Why, you dirty liar!"

"I beg your pardon," said Shevlin softly. "I imagined you knew."

"Knew!"

Shevlin shrugged his shoulders. "Don't be ashamed of having a woman make a fool of you. That happens to every man at least once. My dear fellow—I don't know your name—you owe me thanks instead of a thrashing."

Sally wet her dry lips with her tongue. How easily, how naturally he had spoken! Why, Jerry was shaken already, was confused and uncertain. "It's a lie," he said thickly now, "it's all—why it's a lie!"

Shevlin pointed his finger lazily at Sally, crouching there.

"Look at her there—do you think she looks as if she were a lie?"

"Do you think she'd stand there and smile after an insult like that? Sally, tell me! who is this man? What do you want me to do? What is this anyway?" Jerry's voice ended in a note of something like desperation.

"Take me away," Sally half moaned. "Oh, Jerry, take me away! Don't ask me anything now."

And at that cry Jerry seemed to get control of himself, to face things decisively.

"In a moment, Sally. First of all, I'm going to make this man take back what he said. I couldn't leave this place, and let him—or anyone—get away with what he said!"

Now Shevlin's glance was full of contempt. "I haven't the slightest intention of bawling. I'll take back anything—even the truth. I take it all back. Only, since you're so sure of your opinions, you can have this. She'll probably explain it away afterwards. You look pretty easy."

As he spoke, he had slipped his hand into his pocket, pulled out an envelope, tossed it into Jerry's fingers, and turning his back, walked to the window.

Jerry swung towards Sally, and in that moment her fear and distress swept away her last reserve of courage. A panic came over her, shaking her pitifully. She stretched out her hands, imploring him.

"Jerry—Jerry, don't read it! Tear it up! Please, Jerry! If you love me, Jerry—"

He was staring at her so strangely she felt. He was cruel—why wouldn't he do what she asked? Why wouldn't he?

"Why don't you want me to see what's in this?"

"I can't tell you. Only, it's not true—Jerry, for God's sake!"

His mouth had a look of determination, though he frowned uneasily at the cry that had burst from her.

Then he said doggedly. "But, since I do love you, I ought to be able to understand—everything."

She could not fight any longer. It was as if the life died out of her eyes. She could only stand there trembling, miserable, as he drew the sheet of note paper from its envelope.

CHAPTER 32.

She felt as if she were in a tableau, absurdly recalling how long ago in school in France, she and three other children had posed for an entertainment.

Absurd, for she felt hysterical now through sheer suffering. Only it seemed to her suddenly that there was something so unreal about the way Dan Shevlin was standing, his back towards her, gazing from the window, about the way Jerry was reading that letter.

She remembered the day she had written it, leaning across the little white-topped table of the office building cafeteria. It had seemed a pleasantly reckless thing to do. She could never have believed it would mean so much.

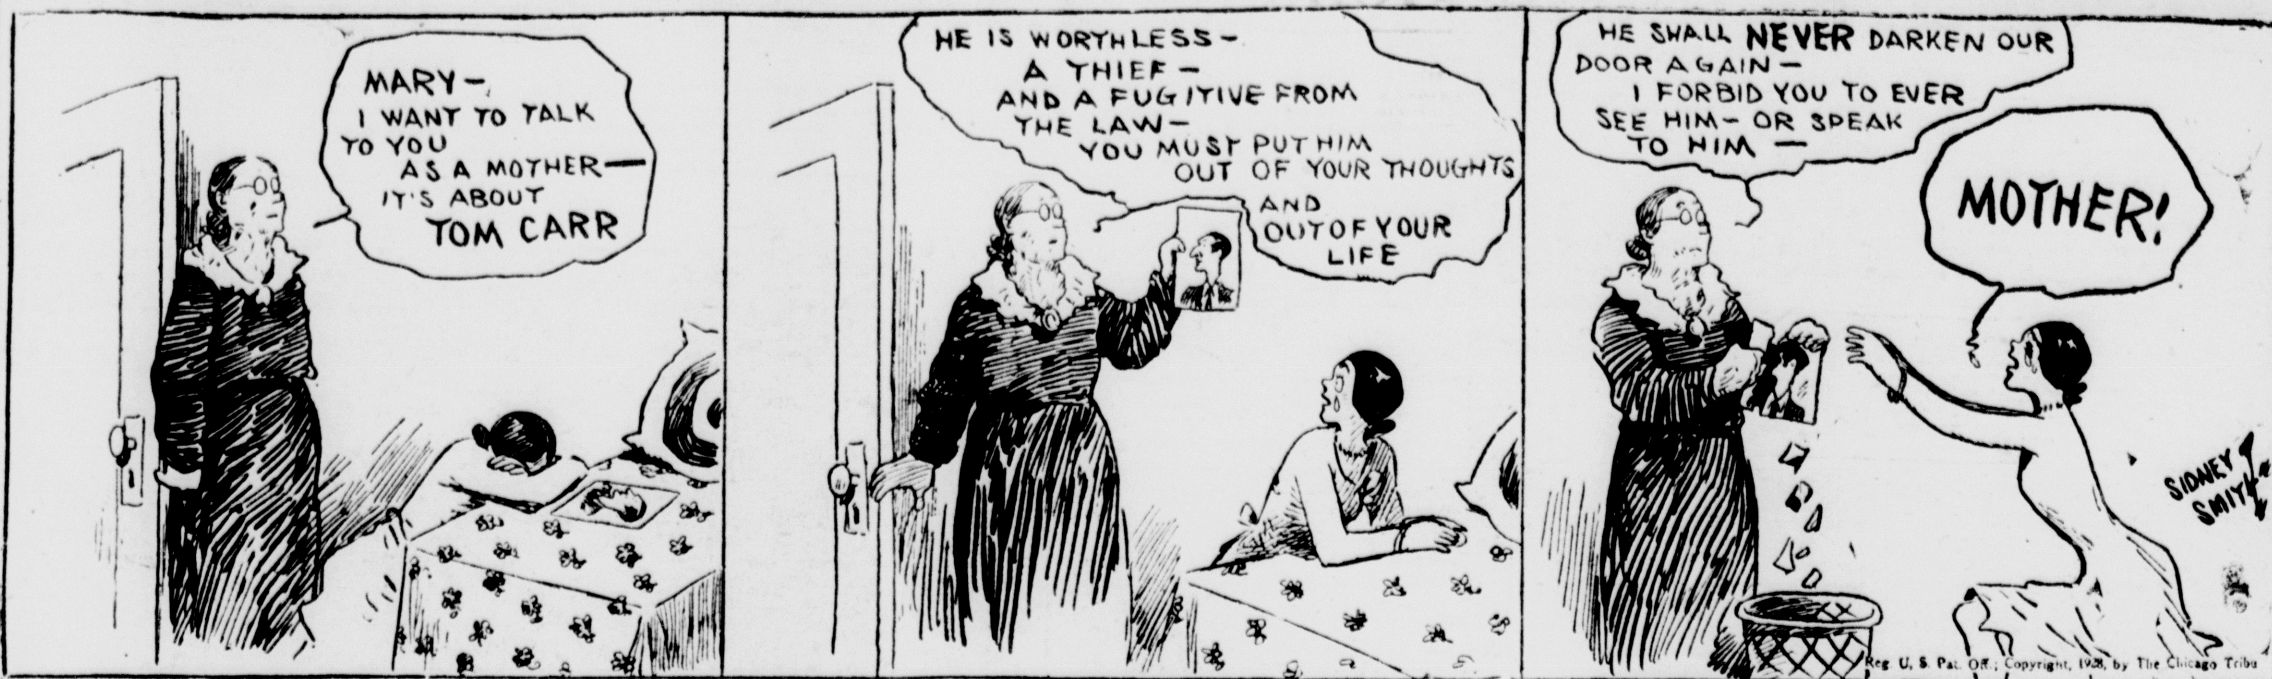

Only now that it had happened, now that her ordeal was over, she wondered why she had been quite so frightened. She would explain to Jerry, it would be easy to explain. And he did love her, and he would understand.

Suppose—suppose, somehow he believed that letter! For one moment fear paralyzed her, as if a shock of electricity had run through her body, paring every nerve. That couldn't happen—that surely couldn't happen!

But why was he reading it so slowly, just holding it there, just looking at it? Such a short little letter—a few brief words. They could be read with a glance.
